Before her marriage to Schwaab she said she gave $375 to him to get a divorce for her from McCormick. A lawyer, named J. Grant Mitchell, was retained, and a man named Collyer, who had an office with him, she was informed, was appointed referee. She gave evidence and afterward an alleged decree of divorce was shown to her. "When this plaintiff left me," said the woman, speaking of Schwaab," he robbed me of all my jewels and dresses, worth several thousand dollars."
